Some Currency, Too France Is Moving To Establish Free Market in Gold

PARIS, Jan. 24.—(CP)—A fortnight's international negotiations with Britain and the International Monetary Fund were climaxed today when the French cabinet decided to re-establish a free market in gold and certain currencies, and it is believed to devolve the franc.

The government's decision was made known in a communiqué announcing that the council of ministers had approved and agreed to present to the national assembly a bill "relating to the regulation of the market in foreign exchange and in gold."

Pierre Abelin, secretary in the premier's office, said the bill in effect meant a "free foreign exchange market." The act of devaluing the currency does not require to be submitted to parliament, and the government's decision in this respect would be announced later today "in time for publication in Sunday's papers."

It would be synchronized with an announcement to be made by the International Monetary Fund considering the French scheme in Washington.

Under the scheme the new franc-dollar rate, it was reliably learned, be 24 francs to the dollar for the fixed rate while the

Smith Tells Court He Did Murder To Avoid Sorrow

CALGARY, Jan. 24.—(CP)—Lloyd William Smith, 25-year-old Calgary truck driver, yesterday confessed to the Nov. 23 homicide slaying of his wife, Phyllis, because "I did not want to cause her any unhappiness." The admission was made during a 2½ hour examination by his defense counsel.

The court will sit Saturday to hear charges by the Crown and defense counsel in the charge of murder against Smith, a former resident of Regina. The case is expected to be handed to the jury before the noon hour today.

Mrs. Smith, a bride of only six weeks, was found dead in her bed in the couple's one-room apartment here Nov. 23. Her head was partially crushed by blows from a four-pound maul, a machinist hammer found in the room. Her husband, who was born at Woodrow, Sask., was arrested at Banff, Alta., the following day.

SPEAKING in a clear, strong voice, Smith said he went out on the night of Nov. 23 without his wife, but a few days and visited a disreputable house. On his way home he saw the office of the Calgary Herald. He was employed and picked up a machinist's hammer which he carried home. He went to bed and on awakening early in the morning killed his wife by hitting her with the hammer.

HE SAID HE WENT TO BANFF IN order to jump off a cliff, to have a car over one.

"I realized I had done wrong that night. I didn't want to hurt my wife so I decided to end our lives."

Milling Crowd Outside Hockey Fans Protest Congestion at Arena

Complaints from several hundred ticket holders for Friday night's senior hockey game between Regina Capitals and Edmonton Flyers were voiced around the city Saturday morning, over conditions which prevailed at the arena before game time. Close to 2,000 persons milled around the south entrance to the rink with the result many of those who held tickets were unable to gain admittance until the first period of the contest was almost over.

HUNDREDS of persons, seeking rush seats, jammed the front of the building and the back of the doors. When ticket holders, arriving before the game, were ordered to enter, they were blocked by the non-ticket holders.

Police and city police constables were unable to cope with the situation and, as a last resort, they were ordered to close four of the big outside doors in an effort to block the rush. Some ticket holders, however, were not deterred and continued to enter, endangering those at front.

Complaints heard by The Bulletin today ranged from inadequate police protection to a demand that exhibition authorities make an entrance for rush seat patrons at the back of the arena. One man was a disgruntled to a city the city, Edmonton, said one fan. Another, who was a visitor from the province, said, "I never experienced such a crowd in my life. At times I couldn't even move my arms."

Says Equality Basis of Unity

WINNIPEG, Jan. 24.—(CP)—National union lies not only in the absence of unpleasant differences within political parties but also in a feeling of equal equality on the LPP support in the C.P.P. party. Louis St. Laurent said today.

Speaking in French to a group of Canadians of French descent, he said his final address in a three-day visit to Winnipeg will center on the theme of national unity and equality.

Conservative Party members, he said, "fostered and defended old institutions," a useful thing but "potentially dangerous" if they insisted on maintaining abuses. Liberals worked for abolition of abuses, but they too were potentially dangerous if they "recklessly attacked respectable and useful institutions."

Police Hold One Suspect City Woman Brutally Beaten by Teen-Ager

Brutally beaten about the head with some sharp instrument, 70-year-old Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, 10750 65 street, was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital about 9:30 p.m. Friday.

THE WOMAN told police she was taking her usual evening walk on 65 street and 109 avenue when a "teen-age youth came along, he grabbed her coat and threw her to the ground, while all the time beating her on the head. She was unable to get up and screaming and believing it to be a robbery attempt, she called for help. At that time she was hit several times that she had no money. Police said they believe the three deep cuts on the woman's head were caused by a pair of spikes in the hand of the attacker.

Mrs. Mitchell said her attacker was fairly tall, with no hat and was wearing a green overcoat.

Later in the evening, Constables Jamie Dean and Bob Gillies arrested a suspected "Peeping Tom" at 51 street and 109A avenue. He is a 44-year-old man, wearing a dark coat and a dark hat. He was questioned by police in connection with the Mitchell case.

Many from Afar Greatest Amateur Ice Carnival Is Promise

Stating that Edmontonians will this year see one of the greatest amateur ice shows ever staged on the continent and undoubtedly the best of its kind ever held in the Edmonton Arena, officials of the Glenora Figure Skating Club Friday night announced dates for their 1945 ice carnival.

THE CARNIVAL this year will be staged in the Arena, Feb. 26, 27 and 28 and will feature some of the finest amateur talent ever to grace the ice on the silver slides.

Carnival committee chairman Frank Mills said he and his associates are spring no effort in making it possible for some of the greatest amateurs in Canada and the United States to skate in this big show and added that in many cases the performers will be flown from distant cities in order that they might provide the Edmonton fans with entertainment.

Mrs. Marian Kinney House, one of the best amateur figure skaters in Canada who has directed a number of previous Glenora shows, will again handle the reins in this capacity for the club. Mrs. House is well known as one of the best in the art of skating in general and crowd pleasing in particular.

In announcing that this would be an all-amateur show, the first held in the Glenora Club, a radio for years—Mr. Mills stated that the main reason for this is to help provide entertainment to the public and show experience needed to compete in the Olympic games.

SHOW REHEARSALS for the city talent have been going on for several weeks now and the club members are performing well. The individual parts in the carnival show are being rehearsed.

Costumes this year will have the look and will be made to look full than ever. Lighting effects will be as beautiful as ever and there will also be a noticeable change and entirely new numbers will be featured throughout.

May Cut Accident Indemnity Act Fee

Reduction in the extra dollar charged motorists under the Automobile Accident Indemnity Act for fire insurers to build up the Uninsured Judgment Fund, which now totals more than $100,000, was made possible by observers in the legislative buildings on Friday.

"It has not yet been discussed in council, but we may have to do something about it," one cabinet minister said.

He added that the reduction in the extra fee could be carried out by order-in-council without further legislative action.

Here's a Chance, Kids, To Join Harmonica Band

By Frances Giddes
If you happen to have two or three takes about the house who cherish a yon for the month organ, the new Y.M.C.A. band is to be Arthur George Herman, harmonica player par excellence. And if you are wondering what a harmonica is, it is a chromatic harmonica, playing flats and sharps as well as naturals.

Mr. Herman, now a resident of Edmonton, organized the first harmonica band in the world in Vancouver in 1932. The 60 members of the band played at the Vancouver auditorium on June 12 of that year, a concert which proved to be a huge success. Here, Minotch, whose well-known "Rascals" of New York City have appeared in the movies, played in that orchestra and was one of Mr. Herman's earliest pupils.

His pupils are now going to be any boys and girls in Edmonton who are interested in the harmonica. The band will be organized by Mr. Herman, who is now a resident of Edmonton.

Minister Voices Opinion Says Canadian Youth Merits Better Than Military Draft

By Rev. G. Stanley Russell

Without explanation or apology, some of which are needed—it has been announced that recruits for one of the armed forces will not be accepted at 17 years of age.

From another influential quarter comes the proposal that all high school boys shall be given a year of training, of which the military service is obviously a minor part. Not very long ago, an army officer of high rank expressed the opinion that the best age for a soldier is 16.

All these and other utterances and tendencies cannot but awaken in the mind of the average citizen a feeling of uneasiness. It is not that we are under the impression that we had fought a victorious war largely for the purpose of destroying militarism throughout the world.

The assumption that war is inevitable and within a measurable distance of time, seems to be the basis on which a number of people are proceeding for themselves and are endeavoring to secure the registration of their sons. When Mussolini began to militarize young boys, there was widespread indignation throughout the world.

When the "Hitler Youth" replaced the boys' clubs in Germany, it was considered a sinister and ominous change. It would not be surprising if the same thing were to happen here.

It is not that we are under the impression that we had fought a victorious war largely for the purpose of destroying militarism throughout the world.

Comfort in God

"God is our refuge and strength, and a very present help in trouble," says the Psalmist. "Therefore will not we fear though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea; though the waters thereof run and be troubled, though the mountains shake with the swelling thereof."

Many passages in the Bible testify to God's solicitude for man. The most consoling of all is that concerning death, in which David says: "Yes, though I walk in the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

Comfort and strength are sadly needed in the world today. The war left countless thousands homeless and impoverished. It has spread ruin and disaster among the poor of many great cities. It has made millions of children orphans. In many places, it has robbed youth of its heritage of hope and promise. In the face of such widespread physical and spiritual havoc, the importance of religion as a source of inspiration and consolation becomes all too apparent.

The wounds of war will not be easily or quickly healed. But faith in God, plus a willingness on the part of religious believers to join hands in the task of rehabilitation and relief will in time restore peace and health to the ravaged countries. In the meantime, it is necessary to resist the temptation to despondency because so much has to be done and because very often the means at hand seem inadequate.

The exhortation to persevering faith must be addressed primarily to those who have suffered and still cry out in desolation. Many no doubt will turn from God in protest and despair because His vision is no longer with them; but they will grow stronger in the knowledge that what they endure is but a testing of their loyalty and devotion. To those faithful souls, there will come in time an abundance of consolation.

To those who have felt the scourge of war lightly, if at all, there is an even more pressing plea. They must be the agents of God's mercy and comfort to their afflicted fellows. They must, out of whatever resources they command, feed and house the shelterless and abandoned. In the name of God, they must seek the needy and restore the sick to health. We call this a work of international relief, but it is more truly an alliance of good and generous men and women with God in His never-ending ministry to the children of earth.

The Coming Russian Terror

By Stanislaw Mikolajczyk
Former Prime Minister of Poland and President of the Polish Peasant Party

Installment XVIII

In today's installment Stanislaw Mikolajczyk tells of the dramatic moment when, in Stalin's presence, Churchill and U.S. Ambassador Harriman confirmed Russia's claim to 48 per cent of Poland and five million Poles on the basis of the secret Big Three agreements at Tehran—EDITOR.

Back in London, after my fruitless visit to Moscow in August, 1944, I reported by failure to come to terms with Stalin about the future of Poland, and set to work on a compromise that I hoped would make possible a reunification of Soviet-Polish relations.

WITH THE AID of my government in London, and after many communications with the underground leaders in embattled Warsaw, we drew up a post-war plan for Poland in which our five major political parties—Peasant, Socialist, National Democratic, Christian Labor and Communist—would have recognition.

As Prime Minister I would form a temporary government made up of equal numbers of the five parties. We would draft the new constitution to replace the 1935 constitution. We would hold a free election. The elected Parliament would adopt the new constitution, settle our growing frontier dispute with Russia and see to it that the Red Army was asked to leave the country when hostilities ceased.

We pledged also to continue the Allied fight against Germany. Making blinding and friendly arrangements with all the Allies, including the USSR and others, further on again the far-flung Polish fighting forces.

able to fly at once to join us in Moscow.

"I AM SURE that this is the only way in which we can break the present deadlock."

I answered that I was prepared to fly to Moscow, but could not agree to go there if Churchill planned to confer also with the Lublin Poles—a Communist group which had been set up by Stalin and would eagerly give him anything he wanted in Poland.

Eden replied, "I am now expecting you. Discussion will, of course, be with the Soviet government and ourselves as well as with the Lublin Committee."

I talked the matter over with our government in London, and was urged against my better feeling to go. I arrived on October 12 with our Parliament's speaker, Prof. Grabski, Gen. Taber, one of our greater Home Army commanders and Polish Foreign Minister Romer.

We met on the 13th with Stalin, Churchill, Eden and Averell Harriman at the Soviet Foreign office. Churchill and Eden drove to the foreign office in an open car, as did we. Harriman went in an ordinary closed car. Stalin arrived a few minutes later in his heavily guarded bullet-proof limousine.

MOLOTOV, THE CHAIRMAN, seated us around an oval table and welcomed the Americans and myself. He referred to us as "our Polish guests," then called on me to speak.

I restated the postwar plan I outlined. "Our aim is to bring about an agreement between Poland and Russia, not between Russia and a handful of Poles."

Oddly enough, Churchill was the first to speak after me. "You mention that the Red Army should leave Poland when hostilities there cease," he said. "You are an ally, not an enemy."

MOLOTOV SPOKE UP. "We are not this plan has the backing of the Polish Underground. I don't think it's possible for them to have entered in such weak terms."

"Marshall Stalin, perhaps you forget that as a younger man you, too, were in an underground and remained active making plans for your country," I said.

I meant it as kind of a draw to be played.

"Ah, yes," he said. "We held six big congresses and about 25 meetings of the Central Committee of the Communist Party while I was underground."

"So you see?" I said. "We have done the same thing."

"What about the Lublin Committee?" Churchill asked. "Was it active?"

"I WENT MUCH DEEPER than the Lublin Poles," I said. "I went to the Polish people... to Polish public opinion. It is their wish that the postwar government include all parties."

"The Lublin government should have a bigger share in the post-war government," Churchill said. "Your plan has two big defects. Stalin said, 'It ignores the Lublin Committee, which has done such a good job in the part of Poland which the Soviet Army has liberated. And, secondly, if any Polish government wants relations with the Soviet Union it must recognize the Curzon Line as an actuality.'"

Ed. Note: The Curzon Line split Poland in two.

"Perhaps the rest of your plan is acceptable, but these two flaws must be corrected."

Churchill expressed a great and sudden happiness. "I see now a new hope for agreement."

"Regarding the new frontier along the Curzon Line, I must announce in the name of the British government that, taking full account of the huge losses suffered by the U.S.S.R. and how the Red Army has helped liberate Poland, the line must be your eastern frontier."

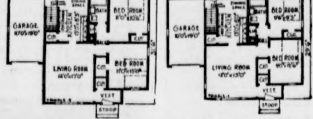

"WE WILL SEE TO IT that for the land you have lost there will be compensations in Western Germany, in East Prussia and Silesia."

Guide to Home Builders

Forty-six small compact homes are illustrated, complete with floor plans, in our new booklet for homebuilders. "Small Homes of Originality." Duplicate floor plans and detailed drawings of interior fittings are offered.

A copy of this new book can be had at the office of The Edmonton Builders' or will be mailed to you postpaid, for $1.00 per copy.

The "Trimble" A Colonial home designed in good proportion and simple dignity which should make any builder proud to own it. The floor plan provides four large rooms with space for dining in the kitchen and the bathroom is easily accessible.

It's possible for them to have entered in such weak terms. "You'll get a nice outlet to the sea, a good port at Danzig and the priceless minerals of Silesia."

"You'll have a nice big country, the one created at Versailles, but a real, solid, new home in which the Polish nation can live and develop in security, freedom and prosperity."

He was watching my face, so after a while he said, "And if I should sit at the peace table, I'll use the same argument."

I looked at Stalin. "You accuse me of ignoring the Lublin Committee," I said. "You're ignoring the Polish government which has fought the Germans for five years, which created strong armies, a navy and an air force, and which now fights on all fronts!"

"I recognize this," he answered. "I have given proper credit."

"But you haven't," I insisted. "I want no argument," Stalin said. "I want no argument."

"Neither do I," I said. "But you must accept the work of the Lublin Committee. Yet it has permitted your agents to arrest and deport the very Home Army men who helped the Red Army liberate Poland."

STALIN LAUGHED. "Things are bad everywhere," he said. "I can't accept the Curzon Line."

I said, "I have no authority to yield 48 per cent of our country and five million Poles."

Stalin went into a lengthy argument in which he insisted that the Polish lands then liberated were really White Russia and the Ukraine, which, of course, was not true. He spoke of heavy losses, and proportionately, were the greatest suffered by any ally.

IF SOVIET LOSSES "entitled" the U.S.S.R. to half of Poland, then Poland's losses demanded at least that our country be returned to us. I argued. "I concluded that even if we did yield the vast area, we still would have no guarantee for the future independence of what was left of Poland."

"Who is threatening the independence of Poland?" Stalin thundered. "Soviet Russia!"

I answered that all we wanted was freedom, and that we had earned it. But there was no way to evade the matter of the Curzon Line, and when I continued to argue, Molotov stopped me roughly.

And he told me—officially—that the Big Three had agreed on the Curzon Line as a Polish-Russian frontier at their Tehran conference—a fact which had never been revealed.

I looked from Churchill to Harriman, silently begging them to call this damnable deal a lie.

HARRIMAN WAS SILENT. Churchill looked straight at me. "I confirm this," he said quietly. "I made Churchill angry and, turning on me, he demanded that I agree then and there. He reminded me of Britain's aid to Poland, but, though I expressed my

Official Declares: U.S. Will Go to Extremes To Corner Uranium Supply

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(U.P.)—A U.S. official expressed belief today that this country will "go to very great extremes" to corner the uranium supply in all parts of the world still outside the Russian orbit.

His remark was evoked by reports of a rich uranium strike in the Chinese province of Kweichow at near Kweichow. The official, not connected with the Atomic Energy Commission, said he had no inside information about the U.S. government's desire to corner the uranium supply.

"It's pretty well known," he said, "that we're dependent on our atomic energy program for much of the uranium we need for our atomic energy program."

"I feel very sure that the United States would go to very great extremes to corner the uranium supply where possible if for no other reason than to keep other countries from getting it."

At the Interior Department, which recently published a survey of pre-atomic bomb uranium sources, the reports occasioned surprise and at first some skepticism. Allan P. Matthews, asstant of the survey, said he had no record of any commercial uranium ore production in China.

Speaking with first-hand knowledge of Greece, Capt. Francis Noel-Baker, one of the secretary of state for Commonwealth relations, said this year would determine whether the U.N. became an invading factor in world affairs or finally failed.

The young Labor member over-riding there must be no apprehension of Communist aggression in Greece and he urged quick and decisive action in favor of an international force to seal up her northern frontiers.

ALBI-RETARDANT FIRE RETARDANT PAINT DISCOVERED

WHAT IS ALBI-RT?

Albi-RT—dispersed in powder form to be mixed with water—is a fire retardant coating material for use on all interior non-burnable surfaces. It can be applied like a paint and dries to a white, smooth, hard film surface which does not discolor or peel. It may be tinted any desired color or shade by adding very minute amounts of color applied to any interior surface that would normally be painted.

HOW IT WORKS:

When a flame develops against a surface treated with Albi-RT the area which the flame covers begins to blister and expand much like a heated mackintosh. Before quickly this area develops into a tough, black, cellular mat that is produced about 1/2" to 1" thick from the surface. This acts as a heat insulator against the flame and the chemical ingredients tend to divide the combustible gases and prevent the access of oxygen.

PAINT OVER ALBI-RT

Albi-RT can be overcoated with any resin emulsion paint, oil paint, enamel, etc. In location where excessive moisture conditions prevail or frequent washing is necessary, it is recommended that Albi-RT be applied as an undercoat, followed by a good quality oil paint as a finish coat.

The historic dome of old Bonsecours Market in the heart of Montreal's ancient downtown district was destroyed recently, when a spectacular blaze sent flames billowing high into the air. Propped among the icy base of a parked fire truck, the cameraman snapped this picture (left) just as the huge top of the dome started to crash down through a mass of scaffolding. The scene above, taken early next morning, shows what was left of the ancient dome. Damage is estimated at $40,000.

First Irish Woman Elder

Miss Elizabeth McCune, a member of the historic Castlegar Presbyterian Church, perched on the Castlegar Hills overlooking Belfast, has the distinction of being the only woman elder in the Presbyterian Church in Ireland. She has served the congregation in various departments including the Sunday school for over 40 years and in recognition of this activity has been admitted to the Kirk session.

Other congregations in Belfast have not looked with favor on the admission of women to the eldership, but it is thought that with Miss McCune as pioneer their attitude may change. There is a feeling among women's organizations here that the time has come for a more liberal policy in Presbyterian church government.

The Presbyterian Church in Ireland is also rigorously opposed to women ministers, as compared with the Presbyterian communion in Scotland and England where there are by no means rare. It is thought that the step taken by the Castlegar church in opening the session to women might also have far-reaching effects on the church's policy in other directions, including the ministry.

Will Sell Church For Relief Fund

LONDON, Ont.—War-damaged churches in England are expected to benefit from the sale of the Beecher United Church.

Trustees of the local church have decided to close its doors, because of a decline in membership and sell the building. Proceeds from the sale will go to England for the restoration of churches there, the trustees said.

Back of the plan is the fact that the local church, Congregational unit it entered the United Church of Canada, received $20,000 from the Congregational Church in England. "There is a distinct moral obligation to return the help given us," the trustees explained.

Bible Promotion Work Discussed

Methods of publishing the program and work of the American Bible Society "in a graphic and living fashion" were discussed at a special one-day meeting in New York of editors of 25 Protestant periodicals.

Dr. Francis C. Stiffer, the society's secretary of public relations, told the editors that at least $2,500,000 in addition to the regular budget of $17,000,000 would be needed in 1948 to fulfill postwar emergency demands from all parts of the world.

Announcement was made that the society will seek in the next five years to obtain 500,000 new members "whose individual contributions from year to year will enable the society more nearly to realize its goal of meeting the vast increased spiritual needs anticipated during the next two decades."

The editors were also informed of plans for an enlarged program by the society which will call for an annual expenditure of $10,000,000 for the next 15 or 20 years "as a new level of service to be considered as the society's normal task in this new world of opportunity."

Call for Practice World Brotherhood

A challenge to "practice brotherhood now" because "the disturbing qualities in our own attitudes and behavior are the real germ centres of tension, conflict and riot" was issued in New York by the Federal Council of Churches in setting Feb. 8 for 26th annual observance of Race Relations Sunday.

The message, prepared by the Federal Council's department of race relations, called upon the churches to "lead individuals and groups to seek the reasons why off-racial groups in the nation feel as they do toward each other."

Relief Shipment

Church World Service announced to New York that it has sent $5,000 pounds of food and clothing to Okinawa, the largest single shipment yet sent to the Pacific island.

Your Laundry at Home

In most small houses one section of the basement is set aside for laundry purposes, although the modern trend in many houses is to do away with the basement entirely and place a compact laundry on or near the first floor level in a well-equipped utility room and adjacent to the kitchen.

The choice between the basement laundry or utility room laundry is a moot question. It is a personal family affair; and those who want the laundry in the basement or utility room are about equally divided.

The first floor location for the laundry seems desirable as it has many advantages such as better light, better floor, ground ventilation for carrying off the steam and heat of the laundry process, but greatest advantage is being on the same approximate level as the drying yard. Thus many steps climbing up and down from a basement are saved and many a backache spared for the housewife in carrying heavy baskets of wet clothes up and down stairs.

Further advantages are quick and easy access to front and rear doors and a constant supervision of children at play out-doors. If you cannot arrange to have

Far East in Need Of Christianity

Greatest opportunity for the development of Christianity and democracy in Asia today exists in Japan, according to Mrs. Welthy Fisher, wife of the late Methodist Bishop Frederick H. Fisher of Calcutta, India. Mrs. Fisher is in New York after completing her seventh round-the-world tour.

She said Christian churches in Japan were filled to overflowing with 25 per cent of those attending services Christian, and the rest there to find out how Christianity works.

According to Mrs. Fisher, Hiroshima, hit by the first atom bomb is more completely rebuilt than Manila, in the Philippines.

A representative of the United Council of Church Women, Mrs. Fisher helped arrange for the observance of the World Day of Prayer in both Japan and China.

Lords Will Fight Government Bill

LONDON, Jan. 24.—(Reuters)—Conservative peers intend to throw out the new government bill designed to curtail their powers of delaying legislation when it is debated in the House of Lords Tuesday, it was learned yesterday.

Peers are said to delay non-emergency legislation for a maximum of two years. The government proposes to cut this period to a year. This is to ensure that the nation's situation of iron and steel, which it will introduce next session, takes place within the life of the present parliament, which cannot last longer than the summer of 1950.

By making the bill retrospective, the government will ensure that measures such as the new steel introduced next session, will automatically become law along with the parliament bill in 1949.

Conservative peers, who outnumber government peers 12 to one, resist the parliament bill because they think it alters the essential balance of the constitution but they favor a considered scheme of general reform of the House of Lords, which would give a more equitable balance of parties.

More Women Face Problems Being Family Bread-Winner

An ever-growing number of women are faced with the necessity of continuing to be breadwinners for themselves and their families, said Mrs. Kate Lyons, head of the women's division of the National Employment service, at a recent address to the Local Council of Women.

Among these women, continued Mrs. Lyons, are those who have lost their husbands in the war, a post-war army of unmarried women, and many women who have a dismal future if they abandon their economic state.

There are definite groups who are considered, declared Mrs. Lyons. Single women, including their own living. Most single women in Canada earn their livelihood and public opinion increasingly expects them to do so.

(2) Married women who by reason of other income condition or by choice are engaged in full or part-time work.

The first argument during the question period, said the speaker, was that it was cheaper to give relief than to create jobs. This is a fallacy, said Mrs. Lyons, as wages would put the money back into circulation.

But the latter amount spent on relief was of no real benefit to the community and barely sufficient to keep the recipient alive.

Money can always be found to give jobs to men and women during war, why not for peacetime? For construction rather than destruction, said Mrs. Lyons.

Among clerical workers, for those who are qualified and experienced, there is always a position available. While salaries are lower than last year, the fact that

Royal Romance Progresses; Anne and Michael Meet at Davos

DAVOS, Switzerland, Jan. 24.—(UPI)—Prince Anne of Britain and her former King Michael of Romania slipped out of their hotel early Saturday to go skating on the snow-covered slopes of the Swiss Alps.

Prince Anne, 19, and her fiancé, Michael, 39, were seen walking together behind the royal couple's high into the Alps in Michael's car.

Members of their retinue said they planned to spend the full day in the mountains and would be away most of their time in skiing during their indefinite stay here.

Members of Michael's entourage said he was considering the possibility of a change of location for his marriage in Lausanne, which has a Greek Catholic chapel. Michael inspected the chapel closely on a recent tour of the city.

Courtiers, the choice of Anne's father, Prince Louis, has no church in Michael's denomination. However, with the usual uncertainty and contradiction that has marked the beginning, Anne said no definite choice has yet been made.

Michael expected the deep snow about 5,000 feet above yesterday morning while waiting Anne's train to arrive from Lausanne. He returned just before the train pulled in, but in time to be waiting for her with a heavy, king-sized bed and Anne stepped down.

Housewives Use Frozen Foods

An debate over the current sharp rise in food prices continues with no apparent decision. The Canadian housewife is coming to a point where she is much less concerned about who is to blame and much more interested in what can be done about preparing her family's dinner.

When it comes to vegetables, however, the housewife has still one card up her sleeve—frozen foods.

Restaurants and hotels are still in the habit of using frozen vegetables to replace the "cheapest" items on their menu and now consumers are finding out that the method of fighting high prices and shortages.

The frozen food technique is not really a new one. As a matter of fact, it has been around for nearly a decade in Canada. Vegetables, meats, and fruits can be quick-frozen and retain their food value as well as their flavor, the experts claim.

Welfare Workers Look to Future

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—(UPI)—Social workers, but Canadian welfare workers, are looking to the future, should another depression occur, said Ronelle Tondal, secretary of the Canadian Welfare Council, newly formed Public Welfare Division.

In his opinion one of the division's first jobs is to guard against the difficulties which the financial welfare workers in their efforts to help people during the hungry years.

"Take 'resistance' taken for instance, which demand that a person must live in one place a certain length of time before becoming eligible for such assistance as relief, old age pensions and hospital care, the inter-variety factor is the fact that the length of residence varies from one province to another, and in different municipalities.

Ballad Author Dies Aged 82

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., Jan. 24.—(AP)—David Greer George, 82, author of the ballad "The Wreck of the Old Ninety-Seven," died yesterday.

In 1928 George filed suit against the Victor Talking Machine Company to establish himself as the author of the song. After lengthy court battles, the United States Supreme Court decided in his favor and the Victor Company was ordered to pay him $60,000—representing one-half the royalties on the sale of more than 1,000,000 records of "Old Ninety-Seven."

General Douglas MacArthur was graduated from West Point with the highest marks attained by anyone in a quarter of a century.

THAT GINKY!

GINKY has brains. There's no question about that, but he uses them in the wrong way. Why, he could lead a mighty easy and happy life with half the brains he uses in the many schemes he hatches to get out of work. He's just plain lazy, which is probably a disease like whooping cough, mumps or a cold in the head. One of his latest tricks was trying to settle down for the Winter on the hospitality of the poor old Rhyming Rabbit.

The Rhyming Rabbit had been recovering from a bad trap accident which kept him in his hole for several weeks, and the Teenie Weenies had been carrying food to him. Ginky, who misses nothing, found this out and he decided it would be a nice place to spend the Winter in lazy comfort without having to work. The mouse brushed up on his rhyming, for the Rhyming Rabbit won't talk to any one who doesn't carry on the conversation in rhyme. Ginky called on the rabbit and sympathized with him in very excellent rhyme. He offered to come and take care of the rabbit. This pleased the Rhyming Rabbit and he invited Ginky to move into his hole.

The Teenie Weenies did not know that Ginky had taken up quarters in the rabbit's hole, for the mouse was too clever to show himself to the little people. If they had known he was there they would have stopped bringing food because they would have known Ginky was eating a large share of it. One day several of the little men found a piece of lettuce leaf back of the grocery store and carried it to the rabbit's hole. They were near the opening of the hole, where they always left their gifts, when they heard a great thumping mingled with many loud squeaks. Immediately Ginky came sailing out of the hole on the tip of one of the rabbit's powerful hind feet.

"Get out of here, you lazy mouse — I will not have you in my house! You eat my food and sleep all day. So out of here, and on your way."

shouted the Rhyming Rabbit in extremely angry verse.

Ginky picked himself up out of the snow and slunk off, but it was some days before the Teenie Weenies heard the cause of the mouse's eviction, although they suspected the reason. Ginky simply ate the rabbit's food and when he wasn't eating he was sleeping. There's one thing sure: Ginky won't bother the Rhyming Rabbit any more. For the kick of a rabbit is something to remember when delivered on the tail part of a mouse in a just cause.
